

Reed Street Bottle Company Has That Special Gift For You

THE REED STREET BOTTLE SHOP

By John H. Vargo, Publisher

Susan Baldaserini and Shai Kessler opened their shop with the belief that drinking wine should be fun, and picking a great bottle doesn't need to be a stuffy or intimidating experience. They pride themselves in sourcing wine and spirits that come from small, independent, and local producers, and aim to send you out of the store feeling like you've scored a gem that you can't wait to pop open.

These folks living in New Baltimore, and working in Coxsackie are in the "game" for the long run. Both from Brooklyn, they have the quiet, aggressive spirit that only entrepreneurs have, they see the big picture.

The shop holds wine tastings during the holiday season, and they are something to behold. You can watch their website, Facebook and Instagram pages, or call them anytime, to find out when their next wine tasting is taking place.

The gift packs and single bottles displayed in these photos will make spectacular gifts for anyone you give them to. And they boast an all-star line up of giftable wines at all price points. Many of these bottle have individual stories that Susan and Shai will be delighted to explain to you. This explanation can only add to the gift presentation!
