TTrue believers are those that will go iceboating, wherever and when ever the opportunity presents itself. The weekend of Feb 10, 11 and 12 was just such an event. Despite weather reports the preceding week that made Sacandaga Reservoir in the foothills of the Southern Adirondacks an iffy possibility, day by day, leading up to this weekend, true iceboaters were loading up their iceboats and waiting for the final word.

The word came when Brett Kolfrat scouted it out on Friday, and assured everyone it was going to be a great weekend. That is exactly what happened. Thanks to Lanzi's on the lake, who provided the access so necessary to get this wonderful weekend together.
