

Inflatable PFD Delivers All-Day Comfort and Bold Styling

Too often, people don't wear PFDs when boating because they're simply too bulky to have fun in. The inflatable Bombora Adventurer is different. Featuring bold styling, it's worn around the waist and offers complete freedom of movement for all-day comfort. Plus, it's Type III US Coast Guard-approved for uncompromising safety.

With simple pull-cord activation, the Bombora Adventurer inflates into a full-size life jacket with 25 pounds of buoyancy. For use by boaters 16 years old and up, it fits chest sizes from 30" to 56". This makes it ideal for owners who want their guests to be safe, but don't want the inevitable groans that come when the old-fashioned foam PFDs are brought out.

Ultra-slim, the Bombora Adventurer has a soft and breathable neoprene-style liner. Measuring only 19" L x 7" H x 3" D, it won't get in the way of even the most extreme activities.

The Bombora Adventurer is easy to don. It's worn like a fanny pack and features a zippered pocket, front attachment loop and D-ring for securing keys and small accessories.

Using the Bombora Adventurer is simple. It's armed with a commonly-available threaded 24-gram CO2 cylinder. Pulling on the bright yellow pull cord handle instantly inflates the PFD. The vest is then slipped over the head. A manual inflation tube with an attached signal whistle is mounted on the front. Reflective tape is on both shoulders for added safety.

The Bombora Adventurer is equally as simple to re-pack and rearm after activation. A new CO2 cylinder is installed. The vest is dried, deflated, rolled back into the belt and the cover Velcro reattached. A video is at bit.ly/BomboraAdventurer.

The Bombora Adventurer is available in two color combinations, blue and grey Quicksilver or teal and white Tidal. It costs $149.
